City Finances.

The Comptroller's report of the condition of the finances of the city of Alpena, up to the first of September, 1892, shows contingent orders issued to the amount of $5,880.56, balance of contingent fund on hand $15,819.44. The amount of street orders issued is $14,922.92, and the balance on hand only $2,279.08. As the street employes' salaries for August, the amount of which is $1,290.76, has to come out of the street fund balance, and the cost of improving Chisholm street, beyond the red bridge, has also to come out of the same balance, it is readily seen that nearly all the street fund has been used. During the coming winter the Messrs. Fletcher will purchase about 8,000 cords of spruce for their paper pulp factory in this city. It will cause many thousands of dollars to be circulated in this county, Every revolution made by the paddle wheels of the steamer (lity of Alpena is registered by a machine worked by the engine, and up to her arrival at this port last Sunday, the wheels had made 3,691,654 revolutions since the opening of that nearly all the street fund has been used.

To reduce the $37,000 of old orders, there remains the balance of the contingent fund. Out of the contingent fund balance there has to be paid the salaries of officers, except police and fire department, for the next six months, also the large expenses of the November election. As there is now only $15,819.44 it is not difficult to see that but little of the old indebtness will be paid, and unless economy is vigorously practiced in all the city departments, there is a probability of the large floating debt being increased instead of being decreased.

The Council might, by economising in every respect, make $8,000 pay the city expenses until March 1st, 1893, but we doubt very much if that will be done.

The intention last spring was to arrange the city expenses so that $20,000 of the old orders could be redeemed, but that is an impossibility now.
